

The induced current produces a field that counteracts the changing magnetic flux.